Yellow Jack in the Army.

It isn't the number of men that yel low fever kills that frightens you," said a soldier, "but the unexpected sudden ness of its attack, and the rapidity with which it kills." A man is well and hearty at 3 P. M.; at 4 P. M. he is deadly ill; at 6 P. M. he is dead, and at 8 P. M. he is buried. The man who dies of yellow fever sometimes digs trenches right up to within four hours of his burial. In much the same manner men will work day after day in apparent health, and then will suddenly appear a general weakness. The body is giving out. It needs something to strengther it, to tone up the stomach, and assist digestion. For this purpose Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is highly recommended It is the best tonic ever made.

Three Doctors in Consultation. From Benjamin Franklin.

"When you are sick, what you like best is to be chosen for a medicine in the first place; what experience tells you is best, to be chosen in the second place what reason (i. c., Theory) says is best is to be chosen in the last place. But if you can get Dr. Inclination, Dr. Experience and Dr. Reason to hold a consultation together, they will give you the best advice that can be taken.'

When you have a bad cold Dr. Inclination would recommend Chamberlain's Cough Remedy because it is pleasant and safe to take. Dr. Experience would recommend it because it never fails to effect a speedy and permanent cure. Dr. Reason would recommend it because it is prepared on scientific principles. and acts on nature's plan in relieving the lungs, opening the secretions and restoring the system to a natural and healthy condition. THE REAL BURGLAR.

BY CHARLES B. LEWIS.

From the time I could read the life and adventures of "Sixteen String Jack" up to a few months ago I had a profound admiration for the highwayman. Next to the highwayman came the burglar. I don't know but he was an equal favorite in my imagination. For years I left doors unlocked and windows open, hoping a burglar would call, but for reasons unknown to me my house was

A few weeks ago I was left to keep bachelor's hall while the rest of the family paid a visit in the country. One night at midnight, as I peacefully slept in my bed, something happened to arouse me. It took me a minute or two to discover what that something was, but I made no mistake. A man stood over me with a cocked revolver held close to my head, and as he saw that I was awake he growled: "Now, then, I wants to talk to yer. If yer go to raisin any row, yer'll git a bullet plumb through yer head."

"Who are you?" I asked. "Yer kin call me most any name."

"And what do you want here?" "I'm after the swag."

"Then you must be a burglar?" "Fur sure."

So my burglar had come at last. I sat up in bed to get a good look at him, and after one glance I felt sick at heart. The burglar of my imagination had always looked the gentleman. This fellow was a low browed, common looking man who hadn't been shaved for a week even if he had washed his face or combed his hair during that period. He not only looked common, but he looked low minded and tricky. I had always given a burglar credit for wearing good clothes, but this man had on a cheap suit, and it was badly worn in spots. I was disappointed and disgusted, and he saw I

"Are you sure that you are a burglar?" I queried.

"Of course I am. Haven't I bin arrested five or six times and served two different sentences for burglary?"

"That may be, but I had a different idea of the fraternity. You are not an intelligent looking man. You wear very shabby clothes. You can't speak ten words without making a slip in your grammar. Be candid with me. Aren't you a chap who got in here by mistake? line or steal something from the wood

"What yer givin me, ole man?" he exclaimed as he tapped me on the head with the muzzle of his pistol. "After I gits through with yer yer'll think I'm a burglar fast 'nuff. Git over ag'in the wall! Now, then, if yer move a finger I'll bore yer!"

One side of my bed stood against the wall, and I moved over at his bidding. My clothing hung on a chair at the foot of the bed, and he laid down his pistol and picked up the garments in succession and searched them. From my trousers he took a roll of money amounting to about $40, from my vest a gold watch, from the breast pocket of my coat some papers of no value to him, and after a glance he returned them. On the dresser had placed that with the other plunder

I said: "I have always believed that men ty or misfortune or unjust treatment. How was it in your case?"

"I went into the bizness because I wanted sunthin dead easy," he replied, with a solemn wink of his left eye. "And doesn't a burglar's conscience trouble him now and then?" "I never heard if it did. If the pur leece lets us alone, our consciences are all right. Where's the rest of the stuff,

"Are you asking if I have anything else of value you can carry off?" "Fur sure! This is no haul. There isn't 'nuff money in this to pay me fur walkin half a mile." "It will figure up close to $300, and it seems to me that is pretty fair pay for an hour's work."

"Shet up. Now, then, git outer bed."
"What for?"

"I'm goin to tie yer fast while I ransacks the crib. Where's the wife and children?" "Out in the country."

"That's good. I'll hev the crib all to meself. Put on yer trousers. Now sit

He placed the chair against the radiator, and as I sat down he whipped a sheet off the bed, tore it in strips and tied me to both chair and radiator. He was nervous and alarmed all the time, but attempted to bide it by bluster. I finally told him that he ought to be ashamed of such nerve and was rewarded by a cust on the ear which kept my head ringing for five minutes. When he had secured me to his satisfaction, he looked me over and said: "I'm goin down into the kitchen for sunthin to eat, and if yer try any tricks on me it'll be the wuss fur yer. "It is no use to go down," I replied. "There has been nothing to eat in the house since the folks went away a week

"Then I'll hev to go hungry. Let's see what's in this safe deposit." He opened all the drawers in the dresser in rotation. There were a few odd pieces of jewelry, buil a dozen old coins and the baby's savings bank, con-

Seizing, accordingly, her pen, she taining 119 pennies. "You wouldn't rob a baby, would you?" I asked as he poured the pennies into the pocket of his sack coat. "And why not?" he queried with a cunning leer. "It's the bizness of a burglar to take all what comes."

'Well, that's another disappointment. I supposed the burglar to be above robbing infants of their pennies. If I'd had the least idea that any such man as you was around, I'd have taken precautions to keep you out. By the way, how did you enter?" 'By the kitchen door."

"Yes, I left it unlocked in order to save a burglar time and trouble. Where are you going now?"

"I'll take a look about. If yer yell out or try to git away, I'll be right on to yer in a minit!" He left the bedroom and went down the hall, and I heard him in the guest's chamber and the servant's room. He was gone about ten minutes, and when he came back he was in bad temper. As I wasn't stocked up for burglars he had found no other plunder.

'Look here, cully!" he growled as he stood looking at me. "I hevn't found "I might look around here myself for six months and not find one," I an-'But if yer don't bank yer sugar where is it?' 'Whenever I have a dollar left I give it to the Society of Reformed Burglars.' "Oh, yer does, ch? Well, I wants more money. See? Yer got money hid somewhere, and if yer don't shell out I'll cripple yer!"

'You've got every dollar in the With that he pulled up a chair, sat down, took a match from his pocket and lifted one of my bare feet on his knee. He was going to burn the sole of my foot to make me betray the hiding place of my cash. "Will yer tell or take this?" he demanded as he scratched the match on the floor. I was about to answer when I saw the form of a policeman in the door. He had seen lights flickering about up stairs, had entered the vard to find the side door and the kitchen door open. Suspecting that all was not right, be had entered the house and looked about and made his way up stairs. My burglar had his back to the door. As he held the lighted match in his fingers the officer stepped forward and gave him a blow with his club, which knocked him off the chair and seemed for awhile to have finished his career. When the hand cuffs had been slipped on his wrists, I was untied, and the officer and I sat down to compare notes and wait for the fellow to regain consciousness. We didn't hasten matters by the use of brandy or water or a palm leaf fan. We gave him all the time he wanted, up and inquired: 'What's goin on here?" "Nothing much," I answered. "You were not satisfied with taking all I had, but were going to torture me in hopes of getting another shilling or two. This officer came in just then and cracked vonr head. " "And I'm a prisoner?"

"You are." "Say, gents, I'm a poor, unfortunate Cerrillos Supply Company were respectively adjudged in said action to have ing no more pluck than a child." "I thought burglars were brave, de termined men," I said. "No, sir, they are not. If yer'll let me go, I'll leave this part of the country Wasn't it your plan to rob the clothes- and never come back. Gents, think of me dear old mother." "What! Do burglars have dear old mothers to weep and worry when arrest and prison come?"

"Yes, sir, and my wife will be so upset that she won't be able to go to her washin. "Then you are the husband of a wash woman?

"It's true, sir. See, gents-I'm weepin. I'm as sorry as I kin be, and if yer'll let me go I'll never even steal an apple as long as I live. Try me, gents—try a broken hearted, sorrowful man, who must have been walkin in his sleep, or he'd never hev got in here.'

And that was my ideal, my hero, my burglar. He had come after a score of years of waiting, and I had found him ignorant, victous and only a step was my diamond scarfpin, and when he above the brutes. I went away and sat down by the hall window and gave way to my grief and disappointment, while the officer lifted the mudsill to his feet were driven to burglary through pover- and walked him down stairs and escorted him to the station. I hoped the man might nerve up and become a hero as he faced the judge and jury; but, alas, he pleaded guilty, shed tears when sen-tenced, and as they took him away he turned back to me and whispered: "Yes, sir, I'm a burglar, and I axes yer humble parding fur disturbin of yer sleep that night."

means of an automatic arrangement devised by Charles Hughes of Red Bluff, Cal. By a mechanical device the deer, in touching a linen thread while moving along a trail at midnight, put in accamera, flashed the magnesium powder and then closed the shutter. Activity Accounted For.

"I have been troubled with bronchitis for several years," writes Mrs. Orlin O'Hara, of Fergus Palis, Minn. (Box 114). "In the first place I had sore throat; doctored with different doctors and took various medicines, but got no lasting relief. We made up our minds to try the medicine advertised as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. After I had taken one bottle we thought we could see a little change. We sent and got another bottle of the 'Golden Medical Discovery' and also one of 'Favorite Prescription.' I took them alternately, and in a few days I began to see that I was better for certain.
